

The scoop on FIU's Research Facilities and Recharge Centers

Did you know that FIU has a Center for Imaging Sciences and a state-of-the-art Forensic and Analytical Toxicology Facility? In fact, FIU offers many advanced and unique shared research facilities and recharge centers that provide access to high-end instruments, cutting-edge technologies and services.

To make this information more readily available, the Office of Research and Economic Development (ORED) completed an initiative over the summer to organize and present key information about all of FIU's research facilities and recharge centers on the FIU Research website in a streamlined fashion. The new research facilities page is at <http://research.fiu.edu/facilities>.

Here you will find a listing of all research facilities, key services and rates, with links to the facilities as well as key contact information. If you have any questions regarding FIU's recharge centers and/or core facilities, please e-mail recharge.centers@fiu.edu at ORED's Office of Budget & Cost Analysis.

The University Graduate School's web makeover

An integral component of ORED, the University Graduate School (UGS) and our graduate students are key contributors to the University's research reputation and to FIU's intellectual and creative environment.

This summer we also upgraded UGS' web presence to spotlight our services and provide pertinent information to our graduate community. In addition to a refreshed and more intuitive structure, new features and content include access to recently published electronic theses and dissertations from FIU graduate students as well as news stories geared towards graduate students.

The University Graduate School website is <http://gradschool.fiu.edu> and is located in MARC 240. Please take a moment to check out the new site and send any feedback to ugs@fiu.edu.
